Regulating Direct Foreign Investment

In the Australian political landscape, few issues are as charged as foreign direct investment.

The need to balance the concerns of different constituencies, national security and Australia’s economic interest means that decisions around FDI are fraught. Finsia’s Regulating Foreign Direct Investment campaign will be considering those conflicting interests, providing a forum for debate, and searching for common ground.

Australia likes to view itself as open to foreign investment; however, by value and number, more cross-border mergers and acquisitions were withdrawn for regulatory reasons or political opposition in Australia between 2008 and 2012 than in any other country. The existing Foreign Investment Review Board (FIRB) process can be unpredictable in both its decisions, and in how it understands ‘national interest.’

Finsia will publish a discussion paper written by Dr Stephen Kirchner, which considers some of the limitations of Australia’s current approach to FDI. Dr Kirchner proposes that the current investment review limit is too low, and that, while national security concerns are a legitimate reason for blocking foreign acquisitions, they should not become a thinly-disguised proxy for domestic political considerations.

In 2014, Finsia will be leveraging its unique position in the industry to encourage robust and fruitful debate on the topic of Foreign Direct Investment. Through a number of events and roundtable, the campaign will engage and inform Finsia’s membership on the issues around foreign investment, and to facilitate a debate to improve the process and policy.

Financing Infrastructure

With the global infrastructure investment shortfall forecast to reach almost $5.5 trillion by 2015, governments need to find new models to fund the construction of much-needed infrastructure. Finsia will be embarking on a project to identify innovative new models of infrastructure funding from around the world, and to consider their relevance to Australia.

One of the biggest challenges in financing infrastructure projects is developing effective mechanisms for the private sector to be involved in the process of building big infrastructure projects. Depending on the structure, the private sector’s role may involve different combination of design, build, finance, operation and maintenance phases. A range of investment models may be relevant to different contexts

Finsia's campaign will be based around three key themes: new ideas for making infrastructure investment decisions; new ideas for making infrastructure financing decisions; and new ideas for government policy decisions. By addressing the three key decision-making points in the infrastructure investment process, the campaign will take a whole-of-process approach to the issue.

HKSI Hong Kong

HKSI Launches First Mentoring Programme

Developing finance talents is one of the key objectives of the Hong Kong Securities and Investment Institute (HKSI). To encourage young talents for the industry, the HKSI has launched LE Outstanding Achievers and Scholarship programmes in previous years. This year, the HKSI launched the Mentoring Programme to provide more support to young professionals.

The Mentoring Programme inaugural ceremony was held on 26 Sep 2013 attended by mentors, mentees, and senior members of the Institute's leadership. The programme was able to match 20 mentors with 65 mentees, who are new entrants and students, according to their interests and preferences. Chairman of the Membership Committee, Mr Peter Wong, said: "Mentors can unlock mentees' potential with guidance and support, which is why the HKSI is proud to launch the Mentoring Programme that will help the mentees learn the knowledge, skill, and values to be a successful professional."

HKSI Chief Executive Mrs Edith Chan added, "At the HKSI, we have amongst our members some of the most achieved and respected financial professionals in Hong Kong. The HKSI is privileged to be able to tap into this power base to benefit market entrants and students who otherwise may not have such access to these senior people to learn from them directly."

In the coming months, in addition to private meetings that will be organised by each mentoring group, the HKSI will also arrange quarterly programmes on topics such as professional etiquette, golfing, and wine appreciation for social skills development of the participants.

HKSI Chairman Mr Craig Lindsay was pleased to launch the programme. "We are thrilled to see the enthusiastic response of both mentors and mentees. We are also thankful to our senior members who not only generously offer their precious time but also invaluable life learnings to help groom Hong Kong's future finance talents." The mentors are really the "Who's Who" in their respective area of practice. For details of mentors please refer to http://www.hksi.org/hksi/index.php?option=com\_pressreleases&view=display&release=155&Itemid=199&lang=en.

Mr Allen Liu, who is a mainland finance practitioner working in Shanghai, took personal leave to fly in for the inaugural ceremony. "Since I started working, I always wanted to get advice from seniors. Yet, help was not readily available and most of the time I learnt things the hard way. In addition to the privilege in being selected as a mentee, the inaugural ceremony is also a precious opportunity to meet the other mentors and mentees. The mentoring programme is very important for me; I plan to participate in each quarterly programme in person."

Another mentee, Ms Minal Khilani, is a native of Hong Kong who recently graduated from Australia. She is working as a financial advisor and would like to assimilate into Hong Kong's corporate culture. "I am touched by each and every mentor that has such genuine interest to impart their wisdom and give guidance to mentees. We are grateful for the opportunity to engage with such senior professionals in the industry and for their participation."

Ms Yolanda Yuen was one of the two lucky students selected from the 72 HKSI Scholarship awardees this year to join the HKSI Mission to Jakarta. She was much honored to also be selected as a mentee this year. "This is a very special year for me as I had experienced many new things that I could not have imagined: awarded as a HKSI Scholar which opened up the benefits of the HKSI membership and professional education to me, travelled to Jakarta with a group of senior practitioner to learn directly from them as well as how to explore emerging market, and selected as a mentee. I am very thankful that the HKSI has spent so much time and effort to groom the younger generation.”

Road Map and Initiatives

HKSI Chief Executive Mrs Chan said, “Autumn is a time for harvest and we are glad that with the tremendous support from members, we have been involved in a number of market defining and Institute advancing projects.”

In addition to the launching of the first mentoring programme for transferring of knowledge and modelling good values, another key accomplishment is the roll-out of the Sponsors examinations this month, in line with SFC’s new Sponsor regime. The HKSI is now concentrating on the new OTC LE papers with target delivery in next year.

HKSI Launched New LE Papers for IPO Regulatory Regime

The new sponsor regime of the Securities and Futures Commission (SFC) commenced in October 2013. With the introduction of the enhanced regulatory framework, the Hong Kong Securities and Investment Institute (HKSI) launched two new papers for the Licensing Examination for Securities and Futures Intermediaries (LE). LE Papers 15 and 16 were introduced to assess whether an individual possesses knowledge on ethics, sponsor work, and the legal and regulatory requirements governing the conduct of IPO transactions in Hong Kong.

Mr Carlson Tong, Chairman of the SFC, said: "Sponsors play a key role in ensuring the quality of IPOs. The SFC's new sponsor regime enables and incentivises sponsors to take a responsible, proactive and constructive role when leading IPOs. We are pleased to see the HKSI's latest initiative to broaden the scope of its licensing examination designed for industry participants who intend to engage in sponsor work."

LE Paper 15, "Sponsors (Principals)", is intended for Type 6 responsible officers or executive officers who want to qualify as Principals, and LE Paper 16, "Sponsors (Representatives)", is for Type 6 licensed representatives or individuals wishing to engage in sponsor work.

Adding to the comprehensive series of high quality study manuals for LE produced by the HKSI, a combined study manual for the two LE papers was developed to provide candidates with a thorough coverage of the practical and regulatory knowledge of what is expected of licensed persons engaged in sponsors activities. Therefore, similar to the other study manuals, this manual is the resultant work of specialists from the academia and experienced professionals in the market.

HKSI Chairman Mr Craig Lindsay said, "I would like to offer my sincere thanks and appreciation to the HKSI Board and Examinations Committee for the direction of development. I would also like to express our gratitude to the SFC, especially the Licensing Department, for the guidance they have given us throughout the process." Mr Lindsay further commented, "Working Group members' constructive inputs and consultants' professional delivery of the study manual are also commendable. Last but not least, I would like to thank the Institute staff for their commitment to complete the task within the tight deadline."

Mrs Edith Chan, HKSI Chief Executive, is proud to launch the new LE papers, "The HKSI is pleased to have played a meaningful role in this standard defining process. We believe both the new LE papers and the corresponding study manual will help maintain the professional standard and enhance the service quality of the corporate finance sector and its practitioners of Hong Kong."

The first sitting of LE Papers 16 and 15 were successfully held on 29 and 30 October respectively. The next bilingual examinations are scheduled on 28 and 29 November.
